JULES NAUDET'S FIRST PLANE SHOT WAS STAGED

A Clue to the Truth about 9/11 ?

Appendix 5 : A letter from MP Des Browne to a constituent

This letter is not specifically about the Naudets — in fact, it was a reply to a letter I wrote before I even suspected the Naudets, and before their film was first shown in the UK — but it reveals some candid personal opinions of my MP 1997-2010, who in August 2002 was a Parliamentary Under Secretary of State at the Northern Ireland Office during the 21-month tenure (practically a lifetime, for him) of "Mr Hunners-of-Jobs," Dr John Reid, PhD. A seven-year-old letter from a government minister of the most junior rank might not be considered of crucial interest, except that this letter is about 9/11, and its writer in May 2006 went on to become Her Majesty's Secretary of State for Defence, a post he held (from June 2007 doubling as Scottish Secretary) until October 2008.

This is what he told me eight years ago on that subject ; one presumes that after his elevation to the exalted rank of Cabinet Minister (as Chief Secretary to the Treasury, in May 2005), Mr Browne's ideas became rather more "on message," and he no longer had the remotest scintilla of doubt about "exactly who did what, when and why" — the answer to all of them being "what he said" — the occupant of the White House, that is. "Disinformation" ? "Propaganda" ? Who would be putting that out ? Not Western governments, surely ? "It is unlikely ... that we will ever really be sure of all the facts" : probably true, but how refreshing to hear a government minister saying it — even if it was eight years ago. Would he say the same today about the invasion of Iraq, which he loyally supported, and whose aftermath he was lumbered with ? Is there any likelihood of the sceptic in Des Browne coming back from the dead again, or is that only going to happen, if ever, when he leaves the Commons later this year ?

Dear Mr Raphael

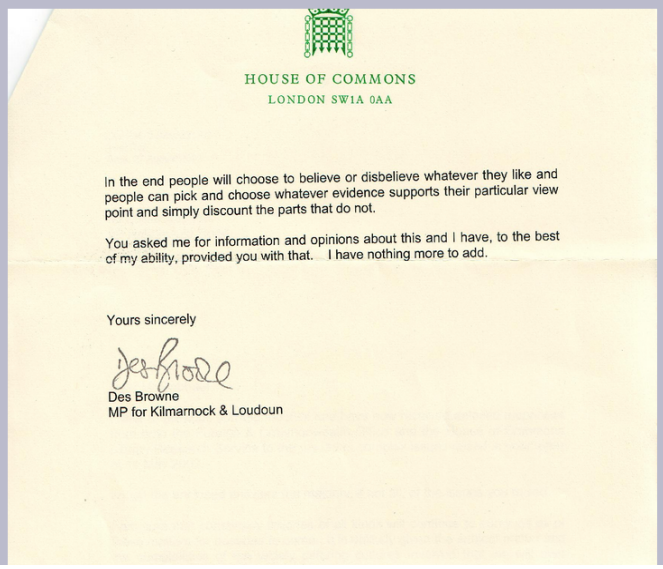

I refer to previous correspondence and have now received detailed responses from both the Foreign & Commonwealth Office and the House of Commons Library Research Service to the myriad of complex issues raised in your letter of 14 May 2002.

I hope the enclosed answers the majority, if not all, of the issues you raised.

I am sure that conspiracy theories of all kinds will continue to surround all of these matters for decades to come. It is unlikely given the subject matter and the complexities of the widely differing cultures involved that we will ever really be sure of all of the facts. I am equally sure that people will continue to pick over all of the strands of this particularly tangled web for decades to come and create their own personal theories about what did and did not happen. Given the amount of disinformation and propaganda that is, and historically always has been, part and parcel of wars and conflicts down through the ages, I think its very doubtful that we will ever really know exactly who did what, when and why.

As for your question about the film footage of the attack on the Pentagon, I can only tell you that I certainly remember the news reports of the smoke pouring from the buildings. That aside, if it were an elaborate hoax of some sort, I would imagine that the whole population of the city of Washington would have required to be in on the conspiracy. That, to me, is a far more unbelievable proposition.

In the end people will choose to believe or disbelieve whatever they like and people can pick and choose whatever evidence supports their particular view point and simply discount the parts that do not.

You asked me for information and opinions about this and I have, to the best of my ability, provided you with that. I have nothing more to add.

Yours sincerely

Des Browne
MP for Kilmarnock & Loudoun
